The series welcomes manuscripts – monographs or edited volumes – addressing a particular set of current interests within the sociology of religion. It specifically aims to advance theory and research within this field of study. Contributors to the series will be or are expected to become ASR members.

The series seeks to publish at least one volume per year. Under the auspices of the ASR, Religion and the Social Order has been published by Brill since 2004 and under the General Editorship of Prof. Abby Day since 2023.

All proposals must contain an overview of the work and a description of its contribution to existing scholarship, as well as a description of the prospective readership of the work. Manuscripts typically range from 80,000 – 90,000 words.
